

College of Education and Human Development (CEHD)

College policy on the use of 4000-level courses in graduate and professional programs

Policy Approval Date: March 7, 2017

Implementation Date: For new and revised programs Spring 2017 and forward

Policy Contact: Brianne Keeney, PhD, Director of Graduate Education Initiatives

CEHD graduate and professional programs (M.Ed., M.A., M.S., M.S.W., Ph.D., Ed.D.) cannot include 4000-level courses in their program requirements. Students in these programs may include up to nine credits of 4000-level courses in their electives. Individual programs, however, may impose more stringent requirements related to the use of 4000-level coursework.
